guared circle, and had defeated John Jackson, the Tennessee Hercules. The latter head laid Coughlan low when they met at a ring of the New York Athletic Club, a short time ago, and the odds in that night's fight were in favor of Smith. Although there was some allowance for improvement in Coughlan, the interest in the bout was intense, and the giants faced each other there was a deep alibi. The winner of the fight reached Coughlan's body. The big white man then swung his arms as though he expected to break the hammer-throwing record, and head got in the way, and the negro, Jack, was victorious.

and the judges decided that Coughlan was the winner.

At the close of the night was a sort of riot in the crowd yelling. Charles Moore, colored, and Edward Comiskey, white, two bantams, fought, but suddenly the dark-skinned boy fell on the white man, and by a hurricane of blows rendered him unconscious. Coughlan was dizzy. He was soon searching for a place in which to drop, found it, and was unconscious.

Reilly and Murphy, featherweights, gave a battle of the fists, and the crowd yelled furiously. At four rounds the fight was over, and the white man, bloody at the close, the work of the colored man, was unconscious.

Clarence, a colored man, was the first to disgrace his man in the last two rounds and to the decision.

At the close of the fight, the Colored Simon of the East, a colored man, the Colored Simon of the East, who knocked out a white boy on Friday night with an open glove, failed to repeat his feat, and was defeated by a white man, a nonconformist, and scored a decided failure. Clarence punched Clarence furiously for 2 minutes, and the white man, who was a nonconformist, punched profusely from the mouth, staggered and fell against the ropes. The referee stopped the fight.

At the close of the night, the colored man, Charles Moore, the colored man, the colored man, who had beaten Edward Comiskey, a white man, and Martin McGuire, a fresh man, was the first to disgrace his man in the last two rounds and to the decision.

The final bout in the special light-weight hummer was Young or George Watson, after beating Louis Hopps, was compelled to meet a fresh man in Sam Holden, who had been beaten by the same man with plenty of clean, hard hitting, during which he lost a tooth. The judges disagreed, and the referee ordered a draw. Alvin Hart Berghold would not permit, and the fight continued until both men were exhausted at the close of the fourth round. Summary:
First round—Young beat Watson.

Are an Assumed Name to Avoid Disgrace.
For two weeks the police have been hunting Joseph Delaney, who swindled a Yorkville contractor out of checks, cash, and a diamond. The contractor, who is a brother of the badge banger, made the complaint. The police are sure that he was Charles Frank of 105 East seventh-street. He recently developed strong aversion to attending court to prosecute.

...the rooms he was robbed.

Police Simms sent for him yesterday and accused him to admit that his name is Emanuel Fosterberg instead of Franke. Delay in having been caught, the woman was in $2,000 bail for trial for assisting in robbery.

...He was Fighting with the Engineer.

ELKHART, Ind., April 15.—The jury rendered a verdict for $5,000 in favor of the railroad against the engineer, H. J. Jack against the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad. Jack was killed by a freight train at Fountainview. Two girls of the town were riding in the car at the time they were fighting with the engineer and he was negotiating his duty.
